

Grandparent University Faculty Directory

Aerospace

Dr. Chad Depperschmidt is an Assistant Professor in Aviation and Space Education, Oklahoma State University. Dr. Depperschmidt completed his 5th year of OSU instruction in May 2010, and is in his second year as an Assistant Professor.

Dr. Depperschmidt has developed and instructed the following undergraduate courses during his tenure at OSU: History of Aviation, Aviation/ Aerospace Management Principles, Aviation Marketing, Airport Planning and Management, Corporate and General Aviation Management, and International Aerospace Issues.

Dr. Depperschmidt has peer-reviewed scholarly publications in academic journals, and has presented his scholarly work to academic and professional conferences. Chad.Depperschmidt@okstate.edu

Agribusiness Management

J C. Hobbs has been with Oklahoma State University's Cooperative Extension Service since 1985. He holds the position of Assistant Extension Specialist in the OSU Agricultural Economics Department. His areas of emphasis are farm income tax management, and estate planning, farm business management, and farm transition planning. He received a Bachelor's of Science degree in agricultural economics and accounting as well as a Master's of Science degree in agricultural economics from Oklahoma State University. JC.Hobbs@okstate.edu

Kim Anderson, Ph.D was raised on a grain and dairy farm in Muskogee County, Oklahoma. Kim served four-years in the U.S. Navy before returning to college and earning a Ph.D. in agricultural economics at Oklahoma State University. After a brief stint at the University of Kentucky, Kim joined the agricultural economics faculty at OSU in 1982 as a professor and crop marketing specialist.

He is well known throughout the southwestern U.S. for his column, "Wheat Scoops," which has been published in the Southwest Farm Press for the last 20 years, and nationally and internationally for his "Soap Box" and "Market Analysis" features on his Web site.

Kim believes in hands-on learning. To enable him to share "war stories" with his stakeholders and students, he managed a receiving grain elevator during a wheat harvest and spent another summer selling John Deere tractors. He has received 18 awards for outstanding teaching and extension programs, and currently holds the title of Professor and Charles A. Breedlove Professor in Agribusiness in the Agricultural Economics Department, Oklahoma State University.

Kim.Anderson@okstate.edu

Gracie Teague came to work for the department of Agricultural Economics in May of 1995 as a secretary. Started her trek toward a Bachelors degree in Management of Information systems from Oklahoma State University, at that time she was promoted to Administrative Assistant in 1997 and again promoted to Programmer in 1999. Completed her Bachelors in 2000 and her Masters in Management of Information systems in 2004 She is a jack of all trades in the department whatever needs to be done concerning technology she does it. From developing and writing programs to modifying off the shelf products to meet the current needs of the client. She also works with multimedia production from making videos to editing finished products to show our department in its best light. She has received the Distinguished Staff Award. Her and her husband live on a small acreage where we raise dogs, cats, horses, hay, and a vegetable garden.

G.Teague@okstate.edu

Eric DeVuyst was raised on a farm in central Michigan. He holds a BS and MS from Michigan State University in Agricultural Economics. He earned a PhD from Purdue University, also in Agricultural Economics. He current is on faculty at Oklahoma State University with a research/extension appointment. He has held previous appointments at the University of Illinois and North Dakota State University. Among other topics, Eric has published scholarly articles on the influence of genetics on fed cattle profits and calf weaning weights. His extension work is largely focused on develop farm decision tools. He lives with his wife Cheryl and daughter Megan on a small ranch north of Morrison Oklahoma.

Architecture

Professor Suzanne Bilbeisi has been a member of the faculty at the OSU School of Architecture since 1993. Her primary role has been to teach in the Architectural Design Studios, and during her years at OSU she has taught students at every level of the curriculum. In addition to the design studio, Professor Bilbeisi has taught a general survey course of architectural history entitled "Architecture and Society" and the "Introduction to Architecture", which is the freshman orientation course for the School of Architecture.

Suzanne.Bilbeisi@okstate.edu

Professor Steven O'Hara has been a member of the teaching faculty at the School of Architecture since 1988. His primary areas of interest include the design and analysis of masonry, steel and timber structures, with special interest in classical numerical structural analysis and the design of concrete structures. Professor O'Hara enjoys his close mentoring relationship with the students in the AE program at OSU, as he also performs the role of their academic advisor as well as one of their primary instructors. Steven.Ohara@okstate.edu

Architecture Students

All of the student teaching assistants who will be participating in Grandparent University have been involved in the ASTEK program. In addition to being outstanding students of Architecture, they have all served as ASTEK leaders, and understand the fundamentals of teaching architectural concepts in a school based setting.

Art

Hali Ruth Linn obtained a Bachelor of Fine Arts with a primary focus in Oil Painting and a secondary focus in Sculpture from Oklahoma State University. After graduating, she plans to attend graduate school and teach at the collegiate level. Linn has participated in local shows in Oklahoma, primarily Stillwater, Tulsa, Bartlesville and Oklahoma City, as well as international shows in Italy. She has studied abroad in Italy twice and was selected for an apprenticeship at Universal Limited Arts Editions in Bay Shore, New York. Linn's artwork can be viewed on her website, halilinn.com. Hali.Linn@okstate.edu

Athletic Training

Dr. Aric Warren is the director of the Athletic Training Education Program at OSU and the Coordinator of the Health and Human Performance Department in the School of Applied Health and Educational Psychology. Aric is a native of Nebraska and attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and University of Nebraska-Kearney. He received his Masters degree from Michigan State University and doctoral degree from DePaul University. His athletic training experience includes practice in the Division I collegiate athletics, high school athletics, and clinical settings. He comes by way of the University of Kansas where he was the former Athletic Training Program Director.

He has presented various topics at regional and national levels. His research interests include athletic training education and injury prevention. Dr. Warren is a member of the National Athletic Trainers Association and the National Strength and Conditioning Association. Aric.Warren@okstate.edu Rachel Hildebrand, Med, ATC, is a doctoral student at Oklahoma State in Health and Human Performance. Before attending OSU, Rachel earned a Master's degree in Sport Administration from Xavier University, and Bachelor's degree in Athletic Training from the University of Tulsa. Rachel has clinical experience with men's and women's soccer, tennis, track, and swimming at Xavier, and has been a health care provider for several summer team camps. She is also a Graduate Teaching Assistant in the OSU Athletic Training Education Program.

Aviation

Mark Uhlman is Chief Flight Instructor at OSU. Originally from Wichita, KS., Mark received a B.S. in Bible/American History at Oklahoma Christian University of Science and Arts in Oklahoma City, and both an M.S. and Ed. D in Aviation and Space Education from OSU. Mark is also a graduate of Spartan School of Aeronautics (Tulsa), and has worked as a corporate pilot, aerial patroller, flight instructor, and minister. He has approximately 5,000 hours of flight time and is a board member of the Oklahoma Area Flight Instructor Association and an FAA FAAst Team lead representative. Mark has been at OSU since 2001, and enjoys the opportunity to interact with students in the classroom and on the flight in line!

Muhlman@okstate.edu

Broadcasting

Jack Hodgson

Professional experience: 18 years professional experience at seven different radio and television companies in small and medium sized markets in Minnesota, Iowa and Missouri. Worked as a radio announcer, advertising representative, radio news, reporter/editor/news director and as a television reporter/anchor/producer.

Courses taught: Media & Society, Fundamentals of Audio/Video Production, Broadcast News Writing I & II, International Communication, Broadcast Documentary.

Professional Memberships: Oklahoma Broadcast Education Association, Oklahoma Association of Broadcasters, National Broadcasting Society/Alpha Epsilon Rho, Central Eurasian Studies Society.

Since the summer of 1995, Hodgson has visited the Republic of Kazakstan seven times to lecture at a number of universities and institutes, present workshops on American broadcasting and consult with members of private and state-owned news media. In the summer of 2001, he taught a course on American media and tourism at the Foreign Language Institute in Samarkand, Uzbekistan, Australia.

In the summer of 2001, he taught a course on American media and tourism at the Foreign Language Institute in Samarkand, Uzbekistan, Australia. Jack.Hodgson@okstate.edu

Cooking

Chef Marc Dunham brings to The Ranchers Club a strong diverse culinary background. He attended the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, New York where he received multiple awards. He holds a Bachelor of Science in Nutrition from Texas State University.

Marc has worked at many of the top restaurants in New York and then returned to his native Texas to help open Austin's Asti Trattoria. He has an extensive teaching background having served as the Executive Chef at Texas Culinary Academy's Ventana and Bleu River Grille. Marc holds the Certified Culinary Professional credential from the International Association of Culinary Professionals. Marc.Dunham@okstate.edu

Electrical Engineering (Opening Session)

Carl D. Latino is an Associate Professor in the School of Electrical and Computer Engineering. During his professional career Dr. Latino has focused his work on digital systems, microprocessor applications and overall system design. He taught at The University of Tulsa, worked in industry at Telex Computer Products in Tulsa and Pelton Company in Ponca City Oklahoma. While working at Pelton Company he designed and developed, various systems, including the Pelton Vibra*Chek. At Oklahoma State University he was instrumental in the development of the "Systems Prototyping Laboratory" which was based on the concept of the senior capstone design program. He was a member and chairman of the "Awesome Design Challenge" for twelve years. The Awesome Design Challenge was an event which pitted teams of college and high school seniors in the unique solution of theme based problems. The event attracted distinguished speakers including astronaut Bill Poague and CEO's of major companies. Dr. Latino also worked for six summers at NASA Kennedy Space Center on various Space Shuttle subsystem designs. NASA projects included inspection robots, health monitoring systems and more. He was instrumental in the introduction of the OSU-Tulsa Engineering Design Challenge. The event annually hosts 200 area students grades 4-12.

Carl.Latino@okstate.edu

Fashion Review

Dr. Celia Stall-Meadows is a visiting assistant professor of design, housing and merchandising at OSU-Tulsa. This is her second year at OSU. Previously, she taught at Northeastern State University in Tahlequah and the Art Institute Online and has authored two textbooks on the fashion business.

Dr. Stall-Meadows enjoys working with groups of young people and has given presentations ranging from etiquette for sixth graders to fashion show production for high school students. She and her students share a love of all things related to fashion—including reading fashion magazines and shopping for clothing, accessories, and home fashions. Her presentation includes designing a color print for textiles, practicing fashion sketching, practicing poise and modeling, and creating a fashion display. Celia@okstate.edu

English in Oklahoma

Dennis R. Preston (Regents Professor, Oklahoma State University and University Distinguished Professor Emeritus, Michigan State University; Ph.D., University of Wisconsin-Madison) has been visiting professor at the Universities of Hawaii, Arizona, Michigan, Copenhagen, Berkeley and others and was a Fulbright Senior Researcher in Poland and Brazil. He was Co-Director of the 1990 TESOL Institute and Director of the 2003 Linguistic Society of America Institute. He was President of the American Dialect Society and has served on the Executive Boards of that society, the International Conference on Methods in Dialectology, New Ways of Analyzing Variation, and the Linguistic Society of America, as well as the editorial boards of numerous journals and series. His work focuses on sociolinguistics and dialectology, particularly folk linguistics and perceptual dialectology and variationist accounts of second language acquisition. He directed four recent NSF grants, two in folk linguistics and two in language variation and change and is a member of the International Advisory Committee for the Language Change in Real Time project at the University of Copenhagen and The Sociolinguistic Survey of Helsinki. He is invited frequently for presentations in both academic and popular venues. His most recent book-length publications are, with Brian Joseph and Carol G. Preston, Linguistic diversity in Michigan and Ohio (2005), with James Stanford, Variation in indigenous languages (2009), and with Nancy Niedzielski, A reader in sociophonetics (2010). He is a fellow of the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science and was awarded the Officer's Cross of the Order of Merit of the Polish Republic in 2004.

Dennis.Preston@okstate.edu

Entomology and Plant Pathology

Dr. Andrine Shufran has been employed with the Department of Entomology and Plant Pathology since 2003. She is currently Coordinator of the OSU Insect Adventure and an Associate Extension Specialist. Her job at the Insect Adventure involves husbandry of numerous arthropod species, supervising student entomologists, devising constant improvements to the facility, and providing more than 200 educational programs on arthropods, annually, to children of all ages throughout the state.

Shufran earned a B.S. in Horticulture and Entomology from Texas A&M University and an M.S. in Agricultural Biology from New Mexico State University where she was received the Dean's Award for Excellence.

She enjoys skeet shooting with her husband, playing piano, reading, movies, and gardening, but most of all, she LOVES her job because she gets to be a kid who never grew up every day! Andrine@okstate.edu

World of Entrepreneurship

Michael H. Morris, Ph.D. holds the N. Malone Mitchell Chair in Entrepreneurship at Oklahoma State University and is the Head of the School of Entrepreneurship. Formerly the Witting Chair at Syracuse University, his entrepreneurship programs have consistently been ranked among the top ten by US News and World Report, Fortune Small Business, and the Princeton Review/Entrepreneur Magazine. A widely published author and researcher, Dr. Morris has written six books and over 100 peer-reviewed academic articles in the Journal of Business Venturing, the Journal of Management, Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice, the Journal of Business Ethics, the Journal of International Business Studies, and the Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, among others. He is the co-editor of the Entrepreneurship Series published by Prentice-Hall. Morris is currently President of the United States Association for Small Business & Entrepreneurship and has served as Chair of the American Marketing Association's Task Force on

Marketing and Entrepreneurship and as editor of the Journal of Developmental Entrepreneurship. In addition, he has been a principal in three entrepreneurial start-ups. Twice honored by Pi Sigma Epsilon as national Faculty Advisor of the Year, Dr. Morris has received the Edwin M. and Gloria W. Appel Prize for contributions to the field of entrepreneurship, and is a recipient of the regional Ernst and Young Entrepreneur of the Year Award. He is a former Fulbright Scholar (South Africa, 1993) and has been inducted as a "21st Century Entrepreneurship Research Fellow" by the Global Consortium of Entrepreneurship Centers. mhm@okstate.edu

Mary Means, M.B.A. is the Assistant Director of the Riata Center for Entrepreneurship at Oklahoma State University in the Spears School of Business. Mary joined the entrepreneurship program in December of 2010. She began her career as a Marketing Coordinator at the OSU Athletic Marketing Department and held that position for three and a half years. Mary completed a Master's of Business Administration degree from OSU in 2009 and an undergraduate Honors Degree in Marketing from OSU in 2006. While at OSU she has taught courses for both the School of Entrepreneurship and Department of Marketing. Mary is a native of Ardmore, OK. Mary.Means@okstate.edu

Student

Matt Villarreal, OSU '10

Horticulture

Shelley Mitchell is an Extension Associate in 4H and Youth Development in the Department of Horticulture and Landscape Architecture, and is the state coordinator for the Junior Master Gardener program. She previously spent nine years as a high school Science teacher in Stillwater, Oklahoma.

Shelley.Mitchell@okstate.edu

Veterinary Medicine

Dr. Kathryn Cass is an Intern in Food Animal Medicine and Surgery. She earned her DVM from Texas A&M University. In August, she will be joining Pearsall Veterinary Hospital, a mixed animal practice in Pearsall, Texas. Her future goals are to complete a surgical or medicine residency with the hopes of pursuing a career in academia.

Kathy.Cass@okstate.edu

Dr. Susan Little is a professor and the Krull-Ewing endowed chair in veterinary parasitology at the Center for Veterinary Health Sciences, Oklahoma State University, where she is active in veterinary parasitology teaching and oversees a research program that focuses on zoonotic parasites and tick-borne diseases. She received her BS from Cornell University, her DVM from the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine at Virginia Tech, and her PhD in veterinary parasitology from the University of Georgia's College of Veterinary Medicine. She is a Diplomate of the European Veterinary Parasitology College and past-President of the American Association of Veterinary Parasitologists. Dr. Little currently serves on the editorial boards of Veterinary Parasitology and Veterinary Therapeutics and has authored numerous publications on veterinary and human parasites, with an emphasis on zoonotic parasites and tick-borne disease agents. Her research is supported by competitive grants from the National Institutes of Health, private foundations, and by the veterinary health industry. She is also an outstanding teacher who has been recognized for parasitology teaching excellence at the class, College, University, and national level. Dr. Little has twice been awarded an Excellence in Teaching Award from the national Student American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA).

Susan.Little@okstate.edu

Dr. Carolynn MacAllister is an Associate Professor, Director of Veterinary Continuing Education, Director of Veterinary Extension, and Companion Animal and Equine Veterinary Extension Specialist at Oklahoma State University. MacAllister is a Texas native who earned a double BS and DVM at Texas A&M University. MacAllister serves on the American Veterinary Medicine Association Group Health and Life Insurance Trust and is active on a number of College, University, State and National Committees and task forces.

Along with teaching Veterinary courses MacAllister organizes and works with a number of conferences, short courses and programs with public education programs. Her professional interests include companion animal and equine health care. She is involved in her church, enjoys volunteering and gardening.

Carolynn.MacAllister@okstate.edu

Dr. Chelsea Makloski, is an assistant professor, Theriogenology. Originally from Trinidad, Colorado, Dr. Makloski earned her undergraduate degree from Oklahoma State University in May of 2001. She continued her studies at OSU and in 2006, received her Doctor of Veterinary Medicine. Following graduation, Dr. Makloski completed a rotating hospital internship at Rood & Riddle Equine Hospital in Lexington, Kentucky. She returned to Oklahoma State University in July of 2007 to simultaneously complete a two year Theriogenology Residency and her Masters Degree. In August of 2009, Dr. Makloski passed her certifying examination to become a Diplomate of the American College of Theriogenology. Her research interests focus on mare infertility, canine infertility and canine brucellosis. In her spare time, Chelsea tends to her water garden and barrel races. She also spends time fishing her new puppy out of the water garden.

Chelsea.Makloski@okstate.edu

Dr. Rebecca Morton is an Emeriti professor of veterinary pathobiology. She earned her DVM from Oklahoma State University in 1972. She went on to earn her Ph.D. from OSU in Veterinary Microbiology. Dr. Morton is a Diplomate of the American College of Veterinary Microbiologists. She is well-known as a clinical microbiologist and for her research in tularemia. She had an outstanding teaching career receiving the Norden Distinguished Teacher Award in 1991, 1998 and 2007 and the OSU Regents Distinguished Teaching Award in 2000 and 2004, as well as numerous outstanding instructor awards given by individual veterinary classes. Rebecca.Morton@okstate.edu

Dr. Larry Stein Dr. Larry Stein, Associate Professor of Anatomy earned a B.S. degree in Botany from Iowa State University and a Ph.D. in Anatomy from the University of Illinois-Chicago. He completed his Post Doctoral studies in Reproductive Biology at Harvard. Dr. Stein teaches Gross and Developmental Anatomy and Microscopic Techniques. LE.Stein@okstate.edu

